DISCOVERY OF A MAIL ROBBERY.-For some months past the Department at Washington has been cognizant of the fact that the mails on the Potomac boat, on the route between this point and Washington, were being robbed. Detectives were set to work, who succeeded in ferreting out, one night this week, the detective secreting himself in a room adjoining the postal room. A young man named Wm. J. Lee, a clerk of the General Post Office, employed as one of the postal clerks to take charge and assort the mails on the boats between Washone. He was arrested and acknowledged

A Query and Reply. The following dispatch was received by General Butler Saturday afternoon:

"PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 18, 1868. Hon. B. F. Butler: "Is all the harvest gathered in, and every seed brought sinful fruit? Are your apple blossoms ripe? John G. McDonougn." To which he sent the following reply:

Washington, May 16, 1868. "John G. McDonough, Philadelphia, Pa.: "Apple blossoms are a little kept back by the cold blasts from the Treasury, but the fruit will ripen under the blazing beams of the 'sun of BENJAMIN F. BUTLER."
